MINERS STONE POLICE AND SING "RED FLAG" IN PONTYPRIDD RIOTS

Curtailment Of Train And Boat Service Is Begun; Government Firm In Stand For Increased Output If Wages Are To Be Raised

(Reuter's Service)

London, October 20.—The miners on strike at Ton-y-Pandy, near Pontypridd, have created disturbances on the last two nights.

Yesterday evening 500 of them carried on a riot in the Town Square, where they sang "The Red Flag," and hurled stones.

They were ultimately dispersed by the police making a charge with batons. Four of the police were slightly injured.

London, October 19.—In the House of Commons today, following upon Sir Robert Horne's statement of the Government's position in regard to the coal strike, Mr. William Brace (Abertillery) emphasised that the miners would not accept an industrial tribunal.

They rejected the proposed datum-line because it was an unsound principle that wages should depend on output whilst the coal-owners controlled production, and also because they believed that overproduction would mean unemployment.

URGES SETTLEMENT

He further urged that an immediate attempt should be made to bring about a settlement.

He believed that there was the chance of a settlement in the next day or two, but that, if the opportunity was lost, a settlement would be much more difficult. He admitted that the Government could defeat the miners, but this would destroy the hope of increased production.

Mr. Brace proposed that a national wages board for the future regulation of mining wages should be established before December 31. His idea was that a joint committee of coal-owners, miners and representatives of the Mines' Department should determine the proportionate shares that coal-owners, miners and the state should draw from the mining profits pool.

PRICE LISTS OUT OF DATE

The old price lists, which had not been altered for years, must, he urged, be replaced by the 1921 list, and, pending the settlement of a permanent scheme for the national regulation of wages, an increase of two shillings per shift should be paid now. It should, however, be reviewed in the light of the financial result of the operation of the scheme at the end of this year.

Mr. J. H. Thomas (Derby), the railwaymen's leader, urged the Government to explore Mr. Brace's proposals. He mentioned that the railway delegates' conference recently rejected a resolution deciding to strike by a single vote, but the feeling of comradeship might, he said, lead to a different result from the same delegates if they were to meet again.

OWNERS' STANDPOINT

Sir Henry Norman (Blackburn) adopting the coal-owners' standpoint, but speaking unofficially, also regarded Mr. Brace's proposals as of the greatest importance.

Mr. Lloyd George, after referring to the gratifying spirit of calmness displayed by the speakers in the debate, said he considered Mr. Brace's proposals somewhat obscure.

In his opinion no scheme of remuneration was likely to produce the necessary results unless the reward bore some relation to increased output. He described the present system of calculating wages as bad, as up to the present increased wages had resulted in decreased output.

The Premier condemned the idea suggested by Mr. Brace that the miners' demand of an immediate two shillings, which was equivalent to half-a-sovereign weekly, was mere dust in the balance.

WEAK POINTS SHOWN

He proceeded to show that there were weak points in Mr. Brace's proposals, the acceptance of which would, he declared, merely lead to the postponement of the strike for three months.

Mr. Lloyd George said that the coming increase in the world's output of coal would probably lead to a reduction of the present price. Referring to the talk of allowing the mines to be flooded, he said this would mean that they would be destroyed for ever, for it would not be worth the while of capitalists to spend money to reopen them. Government must do its best to prevent such destruction.

He emphasised the Government's desire to examine any further proposals from the Miners' Federation Executive. He made a strong appeal to Parliament and the country to trust the Government in respect of any discussions, and he deprecated the idea of being rushed into a settlement.

In conclusion, the Prime Minister declared that any settlement that involved the granting of what the Government considered an unjustifiable demand without adequate guarantees for an increase of output would be a fatal error, which in the long run would damage the mining as well as every other community.

GOVERNMENT STAND FIRM

Replying to a suggestion made by Mr. Adamson, the leader of the Labor party, that a meeting of miners and coal-owners should be called to explore Mr. Brace's proposals or any others calculated to promote a settlement, Mr. Lloyd George said that if the miners were prepared to explore the basis of the Government's general principle, that an increase in wages should have some reference to greater production, he would be delighted to meet them.

The motion for the adjournment of the House, on which Sir Robert Horne made his speech, lapsed by the expiration of the time limit, and the House accordingly rose.

LABOR DISAPPOINTED

It appears that Labor circles were at first very hopeful that Mr. Brace's suggestions would pave the way to an early re-opening of the negotiations between the Government and the miners, with the prospect of a compromise. These hopes were, however, dashed to the ground on their hearing the Prime Minister's speech, in which it was seen that the Government was adhering rigidly to its condition that an increase in wages must be based on increased output.

Mr. Lloyd George's statement was evidently the considered opinion of Ministers, for after Mr. Brace's speech a Cabinet Council was held.

The secretary of the Miners' Federation, interviewed after the debate, said the Premier's speech could in no way be regarded as a contribution towards a settlement.

London, Oct. 20.—As regards yesterday's debate in the House of Commons, the Daily Telegraph declares that, while no definite conclusion was reached, the whole tone of the debate was a hopeful augury for an early improvement in the situation.

London, Oct. 19.—Another great strike, affecting 180,000 commercial road transport workers is looming up in consequence of the employers' refusal to negotiate in regard to the men's claim to a minimum weekly wage of £4 7s. 0d.

The men have been warned by their union to prepare to take immediate drastic action and organise strike committees.

Amateurs Act In Chinese Play For Famine Fund

Prominent Chinese business and professional men stepped into the glare of the footlights and turned Thespian last night in the interests of the famine relief work being carried on here.

The occasion for the amateur effort was a benefit performance for famine relief given by the modern dramatic stock company of the Kwangse Road Theater — China's "Little Theater." A Chinese play, the modern drama type, was the vehicle selected to display the talents of the local amateurs, one of its most impressive scenes being that depicting the sufferings of a famine-stricken village. It was in this scene only that the distinguished group of "supers" "went on," and went through a realistic performance wherein the suffering villagers were seen trying to keep themselves alive by eating grass and bark.

The novices covered themselves with credit in their respective roles and it was announced that as a result of the performance between $2,000 and $3,000 has been added to the fund of the $400,000 drive being conducted by the Shanghai Merchants' Famine Relief Association.

Among the non-professionals appearing in the cast were Mr. Yuan Li-tung, compradore of the American Trading Company; Mr. Zao Zoong-hyi, editor of the Ming Kuo Pao; Mr. Ying Ching-ping, president of the Ming Sung Girls' School; Mr. C. C. Pao, correspondent of the Chinese paper "Social Welfare," of Tientsin, and a number of other well known Chinese residents.

The boxes were all auctioned off, among the highest bidders being Mr. and Mrs. S. A. Hardoon, the Nanyang Brothers Tobacco Company, Senior Magistrate Kwan Chung, of the Mixed Court, and the Ming Sung Girls' School.

Plans Of American Red Cross Are Sanctioned By Famine Relief Committee

Scheme Will Confine Its Efforts In Saving About 75,000 People In A Vast Strip From Tehchow, Shantung, To Lintsing And Tunchow

(China Press Correspondence)

Peking, Oct. 19.—Major Emmet C. White, Chief of the Insular and Foreign Division of the American Red Cross, received, at the meeting of the Administrative Council of the International and Chinese joint famine relief committees held at the Customs building yesterday evening, the sanction of that body to its plans. The Red Cross will now proceed immediately with its scheme for making itself responsible for the salvation of the population in a delimited area of the famine district.

Major White has come here from Manila to work with Minister Charles R. Crane on the administration of the half million dollar appropriation of the Red Cross Headquarters in Washington for China famine relief.

SPECIAL AREA GIVEN

The area for which the Red Cross asked, and which was exclusively granted it by the committee is the district from Tenchow, Shantung, on the Tientsin-Pukow railway, stretching south along the Grand Canal bed to Lintsing in the angle of the canal, and from there southeast to Tungchow, near the intersection of the canal and the Yellow River.

The Red Cross plans to cover a strip wide enough along this line to comprise a population of sixty-five to seventy-five thousand people, and will confine its efforts to saving the population in this area, which is the very heart of the famine-striken region, it will begin with the able-bodied men, who will be collected for constuction works on roads or perhaps utilised in well-digging on their own patrimonies.

ISSUE FOOD-CHITS

Food-tickets will be issued in lieu of wages, rather according to the number of dependents in each man's home than to the value of his labor. A system of distributing these tickets to the families of the laborers throughout the district is being worked out after the pattern according to which the British Labor Battalions' wages were distributed.

Only residents of the area worked will be given employment. A census and register of the district, to be used in checking this up, is already under way. After able-bodied men and their families are cared for, it is hoped to be able to reach out to those families who possess no males able to work. The first road to be built, which is already surveyed, connects Tehchow and Lintsing.

MANY TO BE FED

The Red Cross considers that its funds enable it to undertake the feeding of seventy-thousand people for six months. Several sources of food supply are being tapped, and the millet and soy beans which are to constitute this supply will be shipped into the district by rail to Tehchow, or, in event some catastrophe interferes with rail traffic, as an alternative by U. S. Army transport to the mouth of the Yellow River and thence by barge up to Tungchow.

Mr. J. E. Baker, advisor to the Railway Board of the Ministry of Communications and chairman of the local chapter of the American Red Cross, has been appointed by the American Red Cross, with the approval of Minister Crane, to take entire administrative responsibility for the carrying out of the relief in the delimited district. The Ministery has allowed Mr. Baker his time for this important work. He is at present assembling his staff.

An anonymous letter demanding $4,000 ransom for the return of three-year-old Linda Moors, reported to have been received by the girl's father, Mr. Leonard Moors of the Russo-Asiatic Bank at Hankow, lends support to the theory that the child was kidnapped from the steamer Woosung. The girl has been missing several weeks, having disappeared from the stateroom in which she was sleeping with her nurse while the steamer, which was on the way from Hankow to Shanghai, stopped at Chinkiang. The child was not missed until after the Woosung left that port.

COMMONS IN REFUSAL TO PUT BAN ON IRISH POLICY

Labor Leader Urges That Independents Join In Vote Of Censure

NOT MURDERERS

Sir Hamar Greenwood In Defense Of Veterans In Constabulary

ASQUITH'S VIEW

Former Premier Admits Right To "Hit Back" But Sees Limit

(Reuter's Service)

London, Oct. 20.—The House of Commons was crowded today when Mr. Arthur Henderson (Labor), moved a joint Labor and Independent Liberal vote of censure on the Government for its administration of Ireland and demanded an investigation into reprisals by the forces of the Crown.

In the course of his speech Mr. Henderson declared that the military terrorism, inaugurated in Ireland, was totally opposed to the best traditions of the British people and cited instances of reprisals.

He agreed that there had been great provocation, which the Labor Party condemned, but there was also provocation in the repressive policy of the Government.

CHARGES CONSPIRACY

Sir Hamar Greenwood, the Chief Secretary for Ireland, replying, described Sinn Feinism as a deliberate, organised and highly-paid conspiracy to smash the British Empire.

Referring to the statements, made by Mr. Henderson with regard to reprisals, he said that these came from the headquarters of the Irish Republican Army.

There was a highly-organised propaganda department, connected with the Irish Republican movement, not only in Great Britain but especially in the United States and certain countries in Europe.

This department did its utmost, regardless of facts, to smirch the name of Britain. The majority of the British papers declined to receive this information but some British papers and politicians accepted it.

Sir Hamar Greenwood mentioned that ex-servicemen were now being recruited for the Royal Irish Constabulary at a rate of over 300 a week. He protested against the suggestion that these heroes of yesterday had become murderers today.

DEFENDS GOVERNMENT

The Chief Secretary defended the Government forces and declared that the discipline of the Army in Ireland was unequalled anywhere. He pointed out that the murders of police and military were practically confined to the countries of Clare, Cork and Limerick and to Dublin City. The Government's policy was based on the belief that the vast majority of Irishmen condemned murder and outrage.

Sir Hamar Greenwood admitted that there had been cases of reprisals but only after brutal murder of policemen. Supporting his contention that these reprisals were made under great provocation and against people who sympathised with or assisted the murderers, he instanced the murder of five policemen in West Clare, four of whom were killed with expanding bullets and the fifth blown to pieces with shotguns, when badly wounded.

DEPLORES REPRISALS

The Chief Secretary was convinced that the villagers, whose houses were subsequently wrecked by police and soldiers, were aware of the ambush. Nevertheless he deplored these reprisals as they meant a break in the splendid discipline of the police but it was absurd to compare the case with the destruction of a Belgian town.

Sir Hamar Greenwood said that the Roman Catholic Church was admittedly impotent to break down the terrorism in Ireland. Only the British forces could do that. The boycott was also breaking down. He depicted the agony of the police and military for the past two years and contended that such rendered reprisals more easily understandable.

The Chief Secretary stated that America was not welcoming Irish immigrants as she had done before owing to not wishing to swell the total of disturbing elements in the country.

He stated that the whole of Ireland, including Ulster would be searched for arms.

In conclusion Sir Hamar Greenwood declared that the Government was breaking down the campaign of terrorism and murder, which was intended to smash the British Empire, and he foresaw the end of the rule of assassination at no distant date.

LIMIT IS EXCEEDED

Mr. Asquith agreed that the police and military, when hit, were entitled to hit back again and to defend themselves within every legitimate boundary but the inquiry was demanded by Mr. Henderson because there was prima facie evidence that that limit had been exceeded.

He denounced the Balbriggan murders, which had been mentioned by Sir Hamar Greenwood as an instance of the provocation which had preceded police reprisals, as a foul crime calculated to excite the legitimate indignation of the comrades of the murdered men.

Mr. Bonar Law protested against those, entrusted with the protection of life and property in Ireland, being liable to have every act they did submitted to an unfair tribunal. He declared, amid cheers and counter-cries, that Mr. Asquith's party advocated surrender to crime.

NO CONCESSION TO MURDER

The Government contended that no peace in the world had ever been thus attained and was determined to give nothing as a concession to murder.

Mr. Bonar Law dwelt on the fact that the property, destroyed by the terrorists, was scores of times greater than that involved in the reprisals. The Government did not intend that the forces, upon which we depended for the security of life and property in Ireland, should entertain the doubt that they were not being backed by the Government.

He pointed out that the number of reprisals had greatly diminished since the issue of orders condemning them. The Government would have an inquiry undertaken fairly by people, realising the responsibilities and dangers of the position, and not by possible enemies.

The motion was rejected by 346 votes to 79.

DEBATE IN HOUSE

London, October 20.—The question of police reprisals in Ireland will be debated in the House of Commons today, in which connection an urgent "whip" has been issued to members.

The feeling uppermost among numbers of well-informed people is that the situation in Ireland has improved since August. The prominent rebels are now known, and the Government's position has been considerably strengthened by the possession of much valuable information. Moreover, the police forces are now stronger than they have ever been.

One of the Sinn Fein leaders, named Breen, for whose apprehension a reward of £1,000 has fled to England. Furthermore, it is noteworthy that a captured document reveals the existence of Sinn Fein plans to carry the campaign of murders and outrages to England, for which purpose a special gang has been established.

Plans Of American Red Cross Are Sanctioned

Cross, but it is expected that Mr. Baker's administrative headquarters will shortly be established in the Deutsche-Asiatische Bank building, which has been placed at the disposal of the International Committee on relief.

Work will be begun immediately in the delimited area. Engineers, both of the 15th U. S. Infantry in Tientsin and civilian enterprises, have voluntered their services in mapping out and overseeing the construction work. Aside from this department, sanitary, and medical departments, and probably a department for collecting and manufacturing clothing will be established.

In the registration, recruiting, and actual relief distribution full use, under expert supervision, will be made of the agencies on the ground, particularly of the missionaries willing to co-operate. A complete auditing and accounting system will be installed from the beginning.

LEAVES PEKING

Major White has gone to Tientsin this morning to consult with his engineers regarding the final details of the construction work. In transportation, the Red Cross has been assured of the whole-hearted support of the Administrative Council of the international committee, which in turn has the support of the Ministry of Communications.

MANILA GIVES $50,000

The American and Filipino residents of Manila have forwarded to the American Red Cross the sum of 65,000 pesos (approximately $50,000 Mex.) this being the proceeds of the Famine Relief Drive held October 14 in Manila.

A cable received by Emmet W. White, of American Red Cross headquarters, who is in Peking assisting in the organisation of the Famine Relief, states that the money is now available in a Peking bank. Of the sum collected 10,000 pesos were donated by the Philippines Chapter of the American Red Cross. This Philippine contribution is the first money from outside China with the exception of American Red Cross funds to be actually paid in to relief organisations here for immediate use. The Red Cross has been asked by the donors to administrate the expenditure of the amount in any way it sees fit.

It is understood that the Chinese residents of the Philippines are raising a large sum of money which will be transmitted throughout the Chinese Consul at Manila.

Mr. Maurice Foox, brother of the bridge, was best man. The ceremony was performed in the presence of the American Vice-Consul, Mr. Lasseter.

The reception was held at the residence of the bride's parents, where Mr. H. M. Young proposed the toast of the health and happiness of the newly married couple, the bridegroom suitably responding. OPIUM DENS RAIDED

Further opium raids by the police brought four more proprietors of opium smoking dens before the Mixed Court yesterday, when fines of $30 each, or 30 days' imprisonment, were meted out to men charged with operating establishments at 377 Hoopeh Road and 261 Nanking Road. Twenty-three persons found in the places at the time of the raids were ordered to pay $3 fines or go to jail for 3 days each.

A boatman charged with running a den at 253 Tiendong Road failed to appear for trial yesterday and forfeited $100 bail. Two inmates of the place also failed to appear and forfeited bail of $10 each.

The Chinese Recorder

The Chinese Recorder, October, 1920. Published monthly by the American Presbyterian Mission Press.

If any friendly critic of missions still harbors the notion that mission work is dull, drab and without variety, we advise him to read this number of the Recorder. The variety of subjects, of styles and of treatment is such as to make classification impossible.

Sinology is represented by an article by Dr. Arthur Morley, on the first of "The Five Pa." With that scholarly dryness that is apt to characterise the expert, the writer neglects to mention that the "Pa" correspond roughly to the old Greek tyrants, and have nothing to do with the heads of families as such. It would be a pleasure to break a lance over some of the statements, but space will not permit, and we confine ourselves to the suggestion that in all writing of this kind, the sources ought to be mentioned carefully not merely names of authors or books; and good scholars usually do so. The subject is a dry one and one means of making it interesting is to make it possible for other students to know where the facts have been derived.

A symposium on "Liturgical Features in Church Services" is begun in this number, and ought to prove interesting to all who have any connection with the growing Chinese church. The two writers in the present number (who are not Episcopalians) have some very sensible and suggestive things to say.

The brief account of work for the Tibetans at Sining in Kansu by Mr. Learner should quicken the pulse beat of every evangelist and every one interested in the spread of the Kingdom of Christ. Here surely there is "pioneering where the world is old," and if at any place in the world the Church is to win the sense of a Pauline task accomplished in a Pauline way, it will surely be in these regions beyond. There is no man's foundation to build on there, and every possible moral equivalent for war is at hand.

Mr. Reisner gives a useful and interesting description of what is being accomplished in agriculture missions, and of what may justly be expected to come from its proper expansion. The idea is comparatively new in China, and at the moment when scorn is thrown on a "merely social gospel," it is good to see a missionary making the Master's parables of the sower who went forth to sow come true.

The matter of the independence of the Chinese church is a delicate one; and much old-fashioned grace will need to be expended before it is settled aright. Mr. Mason's arraignment of one phase of the movement, in its self-expression is temperate and just. It would be well if all who have read the pamphlet which he reviews would read this reply, and ponder it carefully.

GIRL GUIDES HAVE ANNUAL MEETING

Society Reports Much Progress In Forming New Companies

The first annual meeting of the Girl Guides Local Association was held in the Cathedral School for Girls, 1 Yates Road, Wednesday, when Mrs. H. P. Wilkinson kindly took the chair, and the secretary, Mrs. Sampson, read the following report:

"At a meeting of the Executive Committee on Sept. 17 last, it was decided to call the meeting for today. I have to report that since the last local association meeting, we have been going steadily ahead. Mrs. Cartledge, Organising Commissioner for China, has been with us since October 11 and has held a most enjoyable training week, which has been well attended.

"Sixteen have passed their tenderfoot test, four have taken their second class, and one her first class test, and will be enrolled at the end of this meeting. In addition to the one already running at the Cathedral School, companies are being formed at the Public Schools for Girls, in Avenue and Boone Roads, the French Municipal School, one of Chinese girls at St. Mary's Jessfield, and we are hoping for some outside companies.

"Brownie packs are also being formed, and we are looking forward to happy times in the winter and a great future.

"St. Joseph's School was hoping to have a company, but they find it impossible to arrange this at present. Mother St. Casilda sends a kind message of appreciation and regret.

"The business before us is the election of an Executive Committee for the ensuing year, and the appointment of a president, vice-president and Executive committee. Lady Fraser has kindly consented to be President. Vice-Presidents: Mrs. Wilkinson, Mrs. Symons, Mrs. Hawks-Pott; Executive Committees: Miss Shaw, Mrs. Graham-Barrow, Mrs. Symons, Miss Patterson, Mrs. Holt, Mrs. Parsons, Mrs. Henman, Miss Thompson. Treasurer, Miss Mayhew; Secretary, Mrs. Sampson.

"Mrs. Graham-Barrow has kindly consented to take my place as secretary in the event of my going to England. It is usual to appoint also a chairman of the executive committee for the year. That concludes the business, I think, but I wish to ask the Local Association to pass a vote of thanks to the following: the King's Daughters' Society and the Cathedral Schools for the kind loan of their buildings, and the immense help that they have given us throughout, the North China Daily News and the Mercury for notices inserted, and the Shanghai Gazette for the kind interest taken in the movement, and Messrs. Kelly and Walsh for printing."

The treasurer's report from June 23 to Oct. 20, 1920, stands as follows:

Annual subscriptions	$24.00
Donations	36.63
Training Week	56.00
	116.63
Expenses	75.00
Balance in hand	41.63

The chairman put these resolutions to the meeting and they were carried unanimously. Mrs. Parsons was elected chairman of the executive committee. A vote of thanks to Mrs. Cartlidge was proposed by Mrs. Wilkinson, to which she briefly replied. An interesting ceremony of enrollment was then held, and the meeting closed with thanks to Mrs. Wilkinson for taking the chair.

SAILORS' DANCE ATTRACTS CROWD

Affair Given By U.S.S. Huron Attended By Over 1,000 People

Over 1,000 attended the dance given at the Town Hall last night by the crew of the U. S. S. Huron, flagship of the Asiatic Fleet, to Shanghai ladies and the officers and men of other war vessels in port.

The hall was brilliantly illuminated and flags and bunting—all in the colors of the United States—were artistically draped throughout the hall. The band from the cruiser dispensed delightful music throughout the evening.

Captain H. I. Cone, commander of the flagship, led the grand march with Mrs. C. S. Lobingier, followed by Capt. Owen of the cruiser New Orleans and Mrs. M. F. Perkins.

(China Press Correspondence)

Peking, October 18.—Minister Obata today gave a luncheon in honor of three Chinese friends: Mr. Wang Hung-nien the Chinese commissioner on the committee which investigated the alleged participation of the Chinese gunboats in the Nikolaievsk massacre, and who is shortly to proceed to Japan to become secretary of the legation in Tokio; Mr. Sze Lu-pen, Commissioner for Foreign Affairs in Shantung, and Chu Hsi-yuan, newly appointed commissioner for Foreign Affairs in Tientsin.

Governor General Greeted At Saigon

(Reuter's Service)

Paris, October 21.—According to official advices from Saigon, the Governor-General of Indo-China, M. Maurice, Long, delivered an address at the opening sitting of the Government Council.

He gave a lucid account of the financial situation of Indo-China, and the tenor of his speech was one of frank sympathy. His remarks were received with expressions of unanimous assent.

SUMMER HOSPITAL HAS BUSY SEASON

An excellent record of work done is contained in the report for the Red Cross Society of China Summer Diseases Hospital. The report follows:

This year Shanghai has been lucky in not having so many people suffering from summer diseases as compared with the dangerous condition of the previous year, but the Red Cross Society of China's Summer Diseases Hospital was opened as usual, and now at the close of the season, it is gratifying to report that much good work has been done at the hospital in saving lives and relieving suffering.

OFFICER MAKES REPORT

Dr. H. Couper Patrick, who has been Medical Officer in Charge, reports that during the four months, 3,576 patients have been treated, of which 2,690 were outpatients and 886 were admitted into the hospital. The 886 inpatients were classified as follows: cholera 262, gastritis 6, diarrhoea 389, dysentery 23, colic 191, and fever 15. The patients included 659 males, and 227 females. Of the 262 cholera cases, 63 died and 199 were cured. Out of the total number of 886 in-patients, 96 died and 790 were cured.

Much credit is due to Dr. Patrick, the Resident Doctors Zoe Zau-yung and Tan Vee-yung and the whole hospital staff for their work. We also extend our sincere thanks to Admiral Lang and the doctors he sent from the Naval Board to give voluntary assistance. Thanks are also due to Dr. W. L. New for his constant help in the organisation and general improvement of the hospital.

PRAISE IS GIVEN DOCTORS

To the Medical Officer of Health, Dr. Arthur Stanley, and his colleagues, we are much indebted for their co-operation and much valuable help as given in former years.

The public will be glad to know that this year our results are far better than expected and we hereby beg to acknowledge our grateful thanks to all the subscribers to the Red Cross Society of China, through whose generosity we have been enabled to carry out this work.

Yang Tcheng, Director of the Hospital.

notices will be decided at a conference to be held tomorrow.

RAILWAYMEN MEET

London, Oct. 20.—Public attention is today focussed on the meeting of railwaymen's delegates to determine the attitude of the railwaymen's union on the coal strike. The meeting will comprise 60 delegates, representing various grades, and according to the union's constitution, the danger lies in the fact that a bare majority can commit 600,000 railway workers without a ballot to a sympathetic strike.

Simultaneously, the gravity of the situation affecting the road transport-workers is evidenced in their executive's warning that "there is no alternative course open but to fight."

The drastic curtailment of train and boat services has begun, including those to Ireland, the Channel Islands and France, while a number of cross-country express trains are also being suspended.

London, Oct. 20.—The Railwaymen's Conference has adjourned until tomorrow. No decision was reached regarding the coal strike.

SHIP RESTRICTIONS

In the House of Commons today, replying to a question with regard to restrictions on ships sailing from the United Kingdom owing to the coal strike, Lt.-Col. Leslie Wilson, Parliamentary Secretary to the Ministry of Shipping, stated that no ships, which had bunkered, would be refused clearance except those with coal in their holds which would not be given clearance pending decision with regard to the best use to which the coal could be put.

GOVERNMENT SUFFERS

London, October 20.—Probably the outstanding point of yesterday evening's coal debate in the House of Commons was the miners' spokesmens' criticism of the Government's contention that an increase of wages must be contingent on increased output.

The miners showed that the proposal put the responsibility upon the miners without giving any guarantee that their efforts would not be nullified by agencies beyond their control.

The Times considers that the Government case has consequently suffered heavily.

VESSELS DELAYED

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Nagasaki, Oct. 22.—The Asahi reports that there are about twenty Japanese vessels laid up in British ports on account of the coal-strike.

The Mainichi in an editorial states that the first report of the riot in Downing Street was unduly exaggerated. It was merely a demonstration of unemployed, and not coal-miners, but the fact that many people jumped to the conclusion that the rioters were miners was largely due to the wording of the despatch.

Labor Leader Quits Commons Because Of Extremists Acts

(Reuter's Service)

London, October 20.—Owing to his disagreement with the policy of the Labor extremists, Brigadier-General Sir Owen Thomas, the first representative of Labor to sit in the House of Commons, has resigned his seat as member for Anglesea.

LOAN IS SIGNED

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Peking, October 22.—The Chen Pao states that a loan between the Hutukhtu and Japanese bankers was signed on September 28 and, the proceeds have already been paid over by the Mitsui Bussan Kaisha and the Japanese Bank of Lungkew.

TRAFFIC PARLEY HELD TO BRING BETTER SERVICE

Conference Discusses Shortage Of Cars And Makes Plans For Remedy

(China Press Correspondence)

Peking, October 18.—The travelling public and shippers are perhaps unaware of the fact that the facilities they now enjoy on the various lines, particularly those running from the Northern to the Southern Provinces, are the fruits of previous Domestic Through Traffic Conferences.

Fired with the successes of these Conferences the Railway Through Traffic Administration of the Ministery of Communications held the first meeting of the Eighth Conference at 10 o'clock this morning in the Reception Hall of the Ministry, which is calculated to further increase the efficiency of railway service, and indirectly to augment the revenues of the Government Railways.

MR. CHANG PRESIDES

Mr. H. N. Cheng, Chief of the Railway Department and Director of the Railway Through Traffic Administration opened the Conference with an appropriate speech of welcome, wherein he pointed out the good work already done and expressed his confidence in the abilities of the delegates present to solve the questions in the agenda. Because of pressure of work Mr. Cheng requested Mr. C. S. Liu, co-director of the Administration to act as Chairman.

A glance at the questions shows that they are of vital importance to passengers and goods traffic. Among the important questions to be discussed are those dealing with the shipment of through goods, the adoption of Metric System, the unification of various accounts forms, etc.

Immediately after this Conference the Through Traffic Acounts Conference will meet to deal with Accounts matter relating to Through Traffic.

TO REMEDY CAR SHORTAGE

After these two conferences have finished with the task imposed upon them there shall be held a General Traffic Conference, at which will be discussed the all essential questions connected with Car Distribution, the new system of Car Record and the Responsibilities of Railways.

The adoption of such a system dealing with Car Distribution will go far to solve the question of car shortage, which has been so much complained of by the public during these years.

Following this will come the Meeting of Standing Committee on the unification of Railway Accounts and Statistics. If will deal with the very important work of unifying accounts and forms, which will bring about the needed economy and efficiency in handling the construction of the several proposed lines.

Yangchow Notes

(China Press Correspondence)

Yangchow, Ku., October 18.—In spite of the handicap of being soldier-ridden, a condition that every one hopes is merely temporary, this city seems to be falling into step with the general line of progress. It is noticeable that whenever a house is rebuilt, it is apt to be somewhat adapted to modern ideas, with more light and air than before. Sometimes a few inches is yielded to the ideal of wider streets. The streets are kept in somewhat better condition than formerly. The introduction of rickshas has perhaps done something to make this improvement necessary. Business seems very good.

The European colony here welcomes to the city Mr. and Mrs. Baskett, of the Salt Gabelle service, who will reside here for some time. Each of the three Missions represented here have had recruits this fall; and an American engineer, Mr. Lane, is residing here in the service of the Canal Improvement Board. Everyone wishes success to the projects.

Improvement in the Canal is sadly needed. There are some dredges to be seen between Kwachow and Tsingkiangpu, but they get little or no work done. It is to be hoped that the long needed enterprise of dealing with the excess flood waters in the northern part of the province will be undertaken. It is rumored that a bridge across the Canal at this city is projected, but I can learn nothing definite of it.

COMMUNITY CHURCH

The newly organised Community Church, formerly The American Song Service, is to hold services at the Masonic Hall, 30 The Bund at 5 o'clock Sunday afternoon when Mr. J. H. Geldart, Church and Student Secretary of the Y.M.C.A., will be speaker. His subject will be "The Program of a Life." Solos will be given by Mrs. P. L. Kurt and Mr. E. J. Dingle.

ENGLAND TIES AMERICA IN POST-OLYMPIC MEET; WORLD RECORDS THREATENED

Yankee Athletes Fail To Run To Form, But Satisfy Big Crowd—Expert Tells Of Accomplishments Of Track And Field Men In Dual Trials

BY R. ENDERBY HOWARD

The United States and the British Empire shared the honors of the athletic sports at Queen's Club, West Kensington, London, on Saturday, September 4. Each team secured five events. It was a fitting termination to a fine afternoon's sport, held in a setting of crowded and healthy excitement, and productive of all the best elements of keen, friendly rivalry between the two nations.

It began with a rousing "Rah! rah! rah!" for the British Empire, delivered by the whole American team assembled in the middle of the ground, and concluded with three great cheers for the United States, given by the multitude at the call of Colonel A. N. Strode-Jackson, D. S. O., one of the organisers of the meeting.

A RECORD CROWD

Hitherto the ground has always been capable of accommodating its crowds, but this time it proved inadequate. It holds about 20,000 persons. Every possible place for seeing was occupied, but very many people had to be turned away.

There was not a dull event, and the American wins were cheered as loudly as the British victories. Till the end the excitement was intense. The British Empire went off with an unexpected rush of success, securing the first four contest. Then the United States had a spell of prosperity. With only the four miles relay race to be decided, the Empire led by five events to four.

HATTON'S GREAT RACE

In this race, W. J. Hatton, a very determined English runner aroused the crowd to its highest pitch of enthusiasm. He ran the third mile for his side, and when he set off his first two colleagues had lost 30 yards. It appeared a hopeless position, especially as he had to run against Joie Ray, who has beaten 4min. 16sec. for the mile on several occasions.

Hatton looked utterly beaten—and said afterwards that he felt exhausted—a lap from home, but by sheer desperation he caught the American and finished ahead of him in the final burst. Hatton ran the mile in 4min. 22sec.—the best time he has ever done. Philip Baker went off last for the Empire, a few yards ahead of Levy Shields, the American inter-collegiate mile champion.

But Baker had already run one punishing race, and he had no pace left for the final 400 yards. Shields went away in that stage of the contest, and won by 70 yards, thus making the scores level. As a matter of fact, the teams were not counting total points, but to a man and a woman the crowd kept the record.

THE WORLD'S RECORD

The best performance of the day was Earl Thompson's 14 4-5sec. for the 120 yards hurdles—a world's record on grass. This wonderful Canadian athlete—6ft. 2in. in height and splendidly built—provided a stirring spectacle in the manner in which he took the obstacles virtually in his stride, his right leg shooting out, but his body hardly rising at all as he went over the hurdles. First to congratulate him was the U. S. champion Harold Barron, whom he beat by a yard and a half.

There were two pleasant surprises for the Empire. The first was the victory in the 880 yards relay race, in which the South African, J. Oosterlaak gained five yards in the first 220 from M. Kirksey, who was runner-up at this distance in the U. S. championship. That lead was never lost.

AMERICANS HANDICAPPED

Kirksey, however strained a muscle during the race—he had to stand down later from the 400 yards—and the visitors were further handicapped by the absence of the Olympic Games 100 meters winner, Charles Paddock, who spent the day in bed instead of running for his country. A severe chill, accompanied by acute ear-ache, developed late on Friday night, and the doctor forbade him to leave the hotel.

The second surprising win for Britain was B. Howard Baker's over R. Landon in the high jump. Each failed twice at 6ft. 3¾in., but Howard Baker, with his curious side-stepping dance towards the crossbar—first on the left leg and then on the right—succeeded at the third and last attempt. Landon, who did 6ft. 4½in. when winning the Olympic high jump, failed at his third essay. They came off the field arm-in-arm.

B. G. D. RUDD AGAIN

Britain won both the two miles and one mile relay races, in each of which B. G. D. Rudd, of South Africa, ran the last quarter of the journey brilliantly. In the longer distance event E. D. Mountain shook off the challenge of Joie Ray 300 yards from home and gained a lead of 30 yards, which Rudd retained, from D. Scott, the U. S. half-mile champion. Mountain and Rudd each ran his half mile in about 1min. 55sec.

In the mile relay superior passing of the baton—especially from Guy Butler to Rudd for the last 440 yards of the journey—accounted in no small measure for the British victory, although Rudd's 48 4-5sec. was in itself a magnificent burst. F. Emery, who has done that time in the States, made a great effort 250 yards from home, but Rudd was the better man on the day.

In the 400 yards relay race—100 yards each man—it was the American side that excelled in the passing of the baton. They were practising it on the middle of the ground before the start, and the practice made them just about perfect. Oosterlaak and Mawby the second and third British representatives, muddled a pass and lost two yards—a lot in a race of this distance.

The U. S. men, as at Antwerp, were supreme in the two mile team race, in which H. Brown, the inter-collegiate two miles champion, and I. Dresser finished in front of the first Englishman, A. H. Nicholls. Sol Butler was not at his best in the long jump. His strained left leg was still bound in bandages. Still, the U. S. won the event and also the 440 yards hurdles, in which they provided all three of the finalists.

It was a perfect day for fast times, but heavy rain overnight had made the ground heavy—a fact

RAY ADVISES ON GOLFING AGE

"Give Boy A Club As Soon As He Is Able To Carry It," Says Expert

BY EDWARD RAY

One cannot begin the game of golf at an age in years too early, I should think. The more golf one has played up to a certain age the better golf one can play. That is why I have said times beyond counting that you should give your boy a golf club as soon as he is old enough to lug it about.

My statement that the more golf one has played the better one can play, perhaps requires a bit of explaining. If I should leave it to stand without qualification, it is likely that some one of you readers would get out the records and find that several championships have been won by men who did not know the difference between a brassie and a birdie until they were well on the road to middle age.

EXPERIENCE COUNTS

What I really mean is not that the efficiency of one golfer as compared to that of another is in direct proportion to the respective number of strokes they have played in their lives. But all the golf that a person has in his system will have a chance to show if he begins to play before he has reached maturity.

The older a man is when he starts to learn the game the greater difficulty there will be for the instructor. The late beginner is sure to develop a cramped style unless preventive measures are administered frequently and for a long time. To add to his golf troubles and so to those of his tutor, he probably will have to forget almost as many wrong ideas as he will ever learn new ones. There are other things to worry about.

ADVANTAGES DESCRIBED

Now that you have my impressions of the disadvantages of the late start, I shall try to hold your attention while I write of the advantages I see in the earliest possible beginning.

If you have a son between four and nine years old, let us say, it would perhaps be a good plan to start him off properly by teaching him some few parts. It might not be necessary, and I think it probably would not, but as I write this I am somewhat amazed at myself for suggesting as youthful a beginning as four years, although I am wholly sincere in so suggesting.

Offer little rewards to the child for progress. All of you who know children realise that such tactics will surely stimulate him to effort.

START AT TEN

Around ten years of age and over that, a boy is initiative and is naturally quick to adopt himself. It is my belief that he will not require a great deal of instruction—perhaps—none and that it might be better to allow him to follow his own natural style rather than to compel him to adopt a certain system purely because some other player has found success in it.

With opportunity to see good players occasionally, it may be that the boy will fall into an imitation of the style of some one of them, and will find success in that.

Or it may be that he has not golf in his constitution. But if he has, it surely will show if given a chance.

I should think training in golf, where skill counts for most, would be, to a small degree at the least, like training for other games that have this identical feature. Very few, if any, of your first-class baseball players learned the game after they were full-grown men, I assume.

Chess Club Founder Asks For Co-operation

Sports Editor, THE CHINA PRESS

Sir: May I ask your indulgence in enabling me to direct the attention of those of your readers who are interested in the game of Chess to the existence of the International Chess Club of Shanghai?

It is just fifteen years ago since I founded this Club in October, 1905 and those then associated with me determined to make the Club a truly democratic institution in strict consonance with the spirit of the ancient and noble pastime of which we were, and are still, the humble votaries. Thuswise, we invited into membership of the Club every person interested in the game of Chess, irrespective of whatever racial, national, occupational, and social section of the community to which they might happen to belong.

The response was immediate, the result most gratifying, and our Club quickly became the largest and most successful of its kind outside the confines of Europe and the North American continent.

Having acted as its Hon. Sec. and Treasurer for some years and thus having been in personal touch with every one of the members, I can recall no instance of illwill or even of friction amongst our most keen and cosmopolitan membership. On the contrary, the very best of good feeling, tact, and delightful personal consideration one for another, was a conspicuous and constant feature of our sessions, year after year. Chess is a great leveller, but ever levels upwards. Those who are mighty in other spheres are often chastened over the severe squares of a chess board, and the humble ones of the market places are likewise frequently exalted!

I stress this feature of Chess, because, unlike cards or outdoor sports, there is no element of luck in the play.

The winning or losing entirely depends upon intellectual ability in the conduct of the game, and the Laws of Chess are so clearly defined that every untoward circumstance is provided for.

A meeting of the Club was recently called by its present able and energetic Hon. Sec., Mr. G. O. Jackson, at which it was my privilege to preside.

Those present decided to make the Chess Club one of Shanghai's most active and popular institutions during the present autumn and coming Winter and Spring.

The general level of play is high, higher than it has ever been I think, and, amongst other plans, we shall be able to hold demonstrations of simultaneous and blindfold play, which is a new feature in Far Eastern Chess circles.

The Club has at the present moment a strong nucleus of members, it possesses a considerable equipment, and has, thank Heaven, a substantial Cash balance in addition to its investments.

We aim at a membership roll of 200, which we think "the counting of noses" last Sunday will amply demonstrate the probability of securing.

I therefore appeal to all old members to rally to the Chess Club without delay, to bring in their friends as new members, and to make our center as widely known as they can.

I also appeal to all Chess players, of whatever station in life, to send in their names plus full postal address plus Twelve Mexican Dollars either to the Hon. Sec. Mr. C. O. Jackson, 128 A Szechuen Road, Flat "H", Shanghai, or to myself care of Shanghai Club for transmission to him.

In conclusion, in order to reassure any who may wonder if, in joining the International Chess Club they will find themselves in safe and suitable society, I may perhaps add that in past years we have joyously collected Twelve Mexicans from Consul Generals and General Consumers, from Judges and Junior Clerks, from Taipans and Tenderfeet, from King's Servants and Queen's Men, from Knights and Ladies, Bishops and Brashmans, and even from Polite People in Castles and Persons who Pawn, so, I think, every shape, kind, color, and quality of nose should be able to find moral support in seeking a Mate over our Chessboards.

I sincerely hope that all Chess Players will forthwith make their move and promptly reply to this opening.

Your obedient servant,
W. BRUCE LOCKHART,
c/o Shanghai Club

FOR SERIOUS SKIN DISORDERS AND COMPLEXION BLEMISHES

CHEMIST TELLS HOW HE CURED HIS PAINFUL ITCHING, BURNING AND DISFIGURING RASHES, ETC., BY USING A COMMON SALTRATES BATH COMPOUND.

For nearly ten years I was afflicted with a complication of bad skin disorders, which caused untold anguish and often rendered sleep at night utterly impossible. My body and face were literally a mass of eruptions and rashes. The trouble was probably of uric acid origin to some extent, because I suffered from rheumatism at the same time, and one day while resting my right leg in an ordinary hot saltrated water bath to reduce rheumatic swelling, pain, and stiffness, I was surprised to notice that the skin had lost its red, inflamed appearance; also that most of the soreness had disappeared. I immediately bathed my entire body in the saltrated water, and that night enjoyed my first sound sleep in months. After continuing for ten days, my skin became perfectly clear and healthy, and, better still, there has been no return of the disorders. Any chemist can supply at slight cost about a half-pound of the refined Reudel Bath Saltrates, and about two tablespoonfuls are enough for the water of an ordinary bath. Dissolve a teaspoonful in a handbasin for washing the face, and cloth compresses wet with the saltrated water are useful for quickly drawing pain from affected parts. I always recommend this treatment for any skin affections, and when prepared very strong, even for corns, tired tender, aching feet and all foot troubles, I have never known it to fail, and from analysis know that among other strong healing and antiseptic qualities, it releases a large amount of free oxygen in the water, which doubtless accounts for much of its remarkable curative power.—J. B. C.

NOTE.—Messrs. A. S. Watson and Co. of 16 Nanking Road, Shanghai, are at present in possession of large supplies of Reudel Bath Saltrates.

FINE LIQUIDATOR IN BRITISH COURT

Mr. Fennell Assessed $100 For Failure To File Statement

Charged with an infringement of the Companies' Ordinances in that he, being liquidator of the Moresby Steamship Company, failed to send to the Registrar of Companies a statement of accounts in the prescribed form, Mr. R. C. B. Fennell A. C. A., 2 Kiukiang Road, was fined $100 and $50 costs in the British Police Court yesterday.

Mr. Lipson Ward, appearing for the defendant, said Mr. Fennell assured him that he went to see the then registrar about his appointment as liquidator of the company. The position was a peculiar one from Mr. Fennell's point of view. The company was a private one in which there were only two shareholders. The company owned one steamship which was sunk in May, 1917. The liquidation came about merely because of the sinking of the ship. The liquidation took place in December, 1917, the only assets being the balance of the insurance money and two loans which were then due from other parties.

KNOWN DEBTS ALL PAID

All the known debts had been paid before the liquidation commenced. In the ordinary way the whole matter would have been wound up in a very short time, but there were accounts to settle in connection with the repatriation of the seamen and a dispute between the company and the London agents. Mr. Moller was going home and was to deal with the dispute and that was the sole reason the whole matter was not wound up at once. Mr. Fennell still thought he might be mistaken, that he filed notice of his appointment as liquidator and that he went and saw the Registrar about it. He did not file any accounts because he was under the impression that it was not necessary to do so in the case of a private company.

WAS AWAY LAST YEAR

Mr. Fennell went home on leave last year, and the letters mentioned were written in his absence. In August this year, when he came back, the matter was brought to his attention. Mr. Moller was returning in September and Mr. Fennell wrongly decided to wait until the whole matter could be cleared up. The position now was that Mr. Fennell was merely waiting for the scrip to be returned for cancellation. When the company went into liquidation he at once paid most of the assets by way of dividend to the two shareholders. He retained a sum of about Tls. 9,800 to meet the bills for repatriation and the dispute with the London agents. Mr. Fennell admitted he had made a mistake but he had not acted with contumely towards the Registrar.

Mr. J. G. Priestwood, appearing on behalf of the Registrar of Companies, stated that the prosecution was not based on a mere technicality and that ample time had been given for filing the accounts. The action was brought to impress upon the public the importance of complying with the regulations.

Peking Hears Russ Government Will Buy Rouble Notes

(China Press Correspondence)

Peking, October 18.—Chinese merchants in Siberia have complained that the fall in value of the new rouble notes issued by the Vladivostok government, which they were practically compelled to accept in exchange for the old currency, has caused them heavy loss. The poor credit of the Vladivostok government and the crude appearance of the paper money itself is said to be responsible for the slump in its value. One yen exchanges for about 150 roubles.

The government received a telegram from Consul Chiu Feng-lin at Blagovestchensk yesterday to the effect that the Russian authorities have devised means for the redemption of the rouble notes which are satisfactory to the Chinese merchants.

MANY KOREANS ARRESTED BY HUNGCHUN JAPS

(China Press Correspondence)

Peking, October 20.—Foreign Commissioner Tao of Tungchun prefecture reports to the government that the Japanese protective army occupying the country is arresting many Koreans. The local Chinese authorities, he states, have protested.

Interviewed regarding the matter, the Japanese Legation yesterday stated that military operations often demand emergency measures such as the arrest of the Koreans in question probably constitutes. Such incidents, however, do not mean that the Japanese are placing the area under military government, states the Legation.

In the Korean section of the Chientao territory, according to Sino-Japanese treaty, Koreans are allowed to live freely, but are under Chinese jurisdiction; Japanese officials possessing the right to sit in the courts in the event of the trial of Koreans for misdemeanor. In the reminder of the Chientao territory, and in the Hungchun district, the status of Koreans is like that of any persons under extraterritorial jurisdiction of their consuls. It is not customary for foreigners under such status to be arrested outside of treaty ports without the concurrence of the Chinese authorities.

A delegation of Peking students called at the Waichiaopu yesterday and made inquiries as to the government's stand regarding the Hungchun matter.

Road System Plan To Relieve Poverty

(Reuter's Service)

London, October 20.—The plans which have been formulated for making new main roads in and from the London area in connection with the relief of unemployment involve an expenditure of £10,000,000. These plans provide for a new road between London and Cambridge, and also for a number of main traffic arteries through Middlesex and Essex.

The scheme will open up many areas at present inaccessible and, while not involving any demolition of houses, will greatly enhance property values in many neighborhoods.

Scouts Are Used To Break Strike

(Reuter's service)

Bombay, Oct. 18.—The strike situation is without change. The telegraph office has now got a sufficient number of recruits to relieve the Boy Scouts and Girl Guides who were acting as messengers.

The Government of India has sanctioned an increased allowance of seven rupees a month, but the strikers have not returned to work.

Baptist, a leader of the postal strikers, has threatened to bring out the postal employes in other centers in India unless the authorities dispense with the recruits and accept arbitration by the 21st inst.

The tramway employes are still on strike, but a partial service is running. There is no sign of a settlement of the gas-workers' strike and the streets are still in darkness at night.

Peking Press Club Now Reorganised

The International Press Club was reorganised at a special meeting of members convoked at the club headquarters yesterday afternoon. About twenty members, mostly Chinese and British, were present. It was decided to cut the club loose from any taint of government or party subsidy or influence, and maintain it purely as a common meeting-ground of Chinese and foreign journalists; the expenses to come from admission fees and monthly dues.

Messrs. Giles, Ramsay and a Chinese member were elected to fill the vacancies in the executive committee cause by the resignation of several American newspapermen, Mr. Ramsay taking the treasurership. All officers carry on pro tem until the annual general meeting of the club about the first of the year, when new officers will be elected.

SUNDAY SERVICE LEAGUE

Mr. Edward H. Lockwood, Executive Secretary of the Student Department, National Committee Y. M. C. A., will be the speaker at tomorrow's service of the Sunday Service League at Martyrs' Memorial Hall in the Y. M. C. A. building at 5 o'clock in the afternoon. His subject will be, "The Making of a Reformer." Special music is to be supplied in the form of a duet by the Misses Anna Chiu and Tong E-ling.

Wu-Han Y.M.C.A. News Notes

(China Press Correspondence)

Hankow, October 10.—The Tenth of October, the National Day of China, was celebrated at the Hankow Y. M. C. A., where a meeting was held in the auditorium in the evening. The Executive Secretary of Hankow, Rev. T. K. Hu, presided at the meeting, and Secretary P. W. Mills, who has but newly joined the Hankow Association, gave an interesting and inspiring address on the Life of George Washington.

Speaking in Chinese, Mr. Mills gave a brief outline of Washington's life from boyhood to manhood and his active participation and brilliant success in national affairs of America—his leadership in the American Revolution, his preseverance and unwavering purpose in the cause of freedom, his masterful statesmanship as well as his citizenship.

In his speech he was assisted by charts with Chinese characters. In closing his address, Mr. Mills remarked that in spite of the corrupt officialdom there is much for China in her coming generation. He expressed himself as being in sympathy with the Chinese student movement for better government of last year and stated that he had reason to be an optimist.

A reception was held on October 9 for Chinese laborers returned from France by the Industrial Department of the Wuhan Y. M. C. A. at the headquarters of the Industrial Y. M. C. A. newly built at Chiaokow on the eastern outskirt of Hankow.

In view of the pressing exigency in the famine situation in North China, Dr. S. T. Kong, Chairman of the Board of Managers of the Hankow Y. M. C. A. and mining engineer of Hankow, and Rev. T. K. Hu, Executive Secretary of Hankow, have joined the Hua Peh Relief Association of Hankow in the name of the Y. M. C. A. Contribution booklets have been received from the said association for raising funds amongst members of the Y. M. C. A.

Several meetings have been held in the Hankow Y.M.C.A. by leading Chinese and foreign missionaries in Hankow to discuss measures to be taken to raise relief funds in aid of famine sufferers in North China. The missions represented are the American Church Mission, the Wesleyan Mission, the London Mission and the Y. M. C. A. An executive committee consisting of Dr. S. T. Kong; chairman of the Hankow Board of Managers, Mr. Arthur Mr. Guttery, General Secretary, and Rev. T. K. Hu, executive secretary, was appointed by the missionary delegates to formulate definite plans to conduct a big Hankow Bazaar. It has been decided by the executive committee to conduct the bazaar in the Hankow Y. M. C. A. on November 19-20. Three sub-committees named to take up assigned work in the forthcoming bazaar are: H. S. Chuck, of the Pacific Trading Company, publicity; Mrs. S. T. Kong, music; and Miss J. Clark, of the American Church Mission, bazaar.

Mrs. Chen Yu-chin and Mr. T. S. Chen, two evangelists in Yunnan province from Peking, passed Hankow some time ago, and gave an interesting account of their work in Yunnan before the Y. M. C. A. staff and Christian workers in Hankow. The speakers concluded that there was room enough for more workers than we can think, and that the harvest was truly great not only in Yunnan, but in such semi-sequestered places as Tibet, Turkestan, Kweichow and other border provinces.

The Institute of Phonetic Script of the Wuchang Y. M. C. A. was reopened at the beginning of October, and an enrollment of 20 members is already on record.

Three free schools were reopened for the fall term by the Wuchang Y. M. C. A. on October 1. The school No. 1 which was originally in the Association old building was omitted this term, as the new building is now in construction. Schools Nos. 1-3 are being housed in missionary compounds in Wuchang.

The committee for the construction of the Wuchang new Association building consists of: Chairman, Dr. Yen Te-ching, Managing Director of the Canton-Hankow Railway, Hupeh-Hunan Section; Vice-Chairman, Dr. Alfred A. Gilman, President of Boone University, Wuchang; Treasurers, Mr. Arthur M. Guttery, General Secretary of the Hankow Y. M. C. A., and Mr. H. S. Chuck, general manager of the Pacific Trading Company; Secretary, Mr. Arthur M. Guttery; members, Dr. Z. T. K. Woo, Superintendent of the Hanyang Iron and Steel Works, and Mr. C. B. Horner, manager of the Robert Dollar Company of Hankow.

Invitations have been sent out to prominent industrial leaders in Hankow, Wuchang and Hanyang to attend the opening ceremony of the new Industrial Y. M. C. A. which is to take place on Octorber 16 at Chiaokow. Secretary J. H. Liu, formerly with the Chinese Labor Corps in France, is busy arranging for the opening fete.

The staff of the Hankow Y. M. C. A. gave a reception in the Educational Department to Mr. and Mrs. C. C. Shedd and to Miss Helen Newton who has just arrived in Hankow to join the Educational Department.

Miss Helen Newton, who arrived in Hankow October 15 from America, has joined the Hankow Y. M. C. A. School of Commerce.

An inspection trip to the new Wuchang Cotton Mill No. 1 was made by about two hundred members of the Hankow Y. M. C. A. Arrangements have been made by Secretary W. C. Yang of the Hankow Membership Department with the staff of the mill to conduct the Y. M. C. A. inspection party to see the various parts of this modern cotton mill plant.

Word has been received from Secretary Edward L. Hall, of the Educational Department of Hankow, who is now in America studying the various problems concerning higher commercial education, for further work in China that he expects to receive the degree of Doctor of Philosophy in Education from Columbia University next June, his work formerly at the University of Illinois being given credit at Columbia University. Mr. Hall is now making investigation of the work done throughout the United States in the field of vocational guidance for future work in the educational program of the Hankow Y. M. C. A.

Mr. H. A. Wilbur and Mr. S. M. Cole are visiting Hankow from Shanghai.

A deficit of $5,000 is found in the budget of the current fiscal year of the Hankow Y. M. C. A., and steps are being taken by the membership department to recruit funds to meet this deficit.

A committee has been named in the Hankow Y. M. C. A. to collect old Chinese clothes from among the Chinese community for distribution to the poor during winter time. The committee consists of Mr. P. P. Mills, chairman, Peter S. Jowe and D. C. Chiu.

The enrollment of the Hankow Y. M. C. A. School of Commerce has already hit the 100 mark, and more students are still enrolling. The school is now working to its full capacity with its present accommodation and equipment. Lady Fraser Hostess To Y.W.C.A. Workers

Work Association Is Doing In Shanghai Described By Miss Johnston

A number of British ladies of the community were entertained yesterday afternoon by Lady Fraser in her home at the British consulate.

The work of the Young Women's Christian Association was presented to the gathering by Miss Edith Johnston of the Shanghai Association. Miss Johnston interpreted the Y.W.C.A. in China as an international undertaking, in that the one hundred foreign secretaries who assist in its leadership are from Great Britain, Sweden and the United States.

The world-wide contacts of the Young Women's Christian Association were further emphasized in a talk by Miss Grace Coppock, general secretary of the Association in China, who has just returned from attendance at three Association conventions of great importance. Miss Coppock went abroad primarily to attend the first world's conference of the Y.W.C.A. held since the war, which met at Champery, Switzerland, in June; but was able to combine with this trip participation in the national conventions of the American and British branches of the Association as well.

She emphassied the kindred interests of women in all of these countries as evidenced by certain trends found in all of them—the growing tide of concern about industrial conditions as they affect women, the problem of the immigration of women, and the expression of the religious life of women as influenced by the profound effects of the years of war.

JUDGMENT GIVEN IN COMPRADORE SUIT

A claim of Tls. 616.68 brought against the Eastern Syndicate by Sze Ching-ho was heard before Registrar G. W. King in the British Supreme Court yesterday, Mr. J. H. Davies appearing for the plaintiff and Mr. F. J. Schuhl for the defendants.

Mr. Davies stated that the plaintiff was formerly the defendants' compradore and that when he left their employ the sum sued for was part of a balance due him. The total amount due him had been Tls. 1,416. Tls. 700 had been paid in cash, and, later Tls. 99.12. For the balance promissory notes had been given. The defendants claimed that receipts were held for payment in full and Mr. Alfred Simoes, manager of the defendant firm, said that he had given the plaintiff two native orders and three checks for the total amount due. An American-Oriental Bank accountant after examining the signatures, said he could not swear they were by the same man but he would be prepared to pay up to Tls. 10,000 on them.

Judgment with costs was given for the plaintiff.

HONOR TO LEMAN

CASTORIA

for Infants and Children.

Save the Babies.

INFANT MORTALITY is something frightful. We can hardly realize that of all the children born in civilized countries, twenty-two per cent, or nearly one-quarter, die before they reach one year; thirty-seven per cent, or more than one-third, before they are five, and one-half before they are fifteen!

We do not hesitate to say that a timely use of Castoria would save a majority of these precious lives. Neither do we hesitate to say that many of these infantile deaths are occasioned by the use of narcotic preparations. Drops, tinctures and soothing syrups sold for children's complaints contain more or less opium, or morphine. They are, in considerable quantities, deadly poisons. In any quantity, they stupefy and retard circulation and lead to congestions, sickness, death. Castoria operates exactly the reverse. It causes the blood to circulate properly, opens the pores of the skin and allays fever.

The signature of Chas. H. Fletcher guarantees genuine Castoria

Physicians Recommend Castoria.

"I have used your Castoria in cases of colic in children and have found it the best medicine of its kind on the market."
J. E. SIMPSON, M. D., Chicago, Ill.

"Castoria is good for children and I frequently prescribe it, and always obtain the desired result."
F. GERALD BLATTNER, M. D., Buffalo, N. Y.

"A medicine so valuable and beneficial for children as your Castoria is deserves the highest praise. I find it in use everywhere."
J. S. ALEXANDER, M. D., Omaha, Neb.

"I have prescribed Castoria to families for several years. It is all right. Mothers like it, for children will take it without any trouble."
C. A. WILSON, M. D., St. Louis, Mo.

"Have used your Castoria on various occasions in suitable cases and have found it a palatable and effic ent laxative, especially in the various diseases of childhood."
CHAS. EDWARD GARDINER, M. D., Brooklyn, N. Y.

"Your Castoria is a splendid remedy for children, known the world over. I use it in my practice and have no hesitancy in recommending it for the complaints of infants and children."
J. A. BOARMAN, M. D., Kansas City, Mo.

OAK FLOORING AND PANELLING

Stand The Hard Test Of Time!

When installing any other wood than Oak for flooring or panelling, one item must be taken into consideration in counting the cost, and that is the fact that in a very few years the floor will have to be renewed. With Oak, however, at the end of a quarter of a century, the flooring and panelling is not only more pleasing to the eye than when new, but is also worth a great deal more.

WE SUPPLY OAK FOR FLOORING, WAINSCOTING, PANELLING, ETC., ETC., KILN-DRIED AND QUALITY GUARANTEED

We give all orders personal attention. After you have placed your order with us, the flooring will be laid and all work carried out under the personal supervision of a foreign expert of the Company. This supervision costs you nothing and we prefer to do this for you.

Insist that all lumber for flooring and panelling for interior work bears the "Three Pines" Trade Mark, and the letters "KD" signifying kiln-dried, thus ensuring its perfect quality, and suitability for the severe climatic conditions of China.

To Foreign Exporters

GENTLEMEN,

As you know, the members of our Association by their contracts for delivery of Liquid Egg and Liquid Yolk are at present responsible for good quality of goods up to within four months from date of shipment from Shanghai.

During the past years so many claims have been made upon our members as to bad quality of Liquid Egg and Liquid Yolk, though shipped in good condition from Shanghai, that they lost large sums in paying such claims; in many cases, claims were double the contract price.

As we do not care to go into the question as to whether the large increase in the number and amount of claims made may not have some relation to violent fluctuations in exchange and fall in prices, the Association, on behalf of its members, instruct me to inform exporters that on all contracts for goods to be delivered on or after January 1st, 1921, no claim will be recognised by the sellers on goods which have been accepted by the buyers prior to shipment.

Cotton Market

In their report dated October 23, Messrs. J. Spunt and Co. write as follows:

China Cotton.—The weakish tendency which manifested itself in the early part of the week under review was soon transmuted, though somewhat undulatingly, into a steadier feeling and which condition continues at the close, due in a measure to a little demand having arisen on the part of some of the mills as well as to the recent upward movement in local yarn values.

The bulk of the business so far consummated has been more for distant deliveries than for spots and while it would be hazardous at this time to attempt to prophecy the future course of the market, it remains to be seen what effect will be produced no sooner shorts, who are constantly bearish in their attitude, commence their covering operations. Tone of the market steady.

Wanted---A Policy

THE serious weeklies in Great Britain are talking about the British Government in much the same way that the same sort of weeklies in America discuss the American Government. Witness: The Nation, of London. Under the heading "Wanted—a Policy" The Nation doclares that since the signing of the armistice all the British ideals have been lost. Here is how the weekly in question puts it:

"Most people believe that in politics, if you want black to be white, you have only to repeat sufficiently often and solemnly that black is white and they will in fact become the same thing, namely, grey. So M. Joseph Reinach writes to the Times with regard to the existing situation, solemnly protesting that France and Britain must let not only Russians and Germans, but the whole wide world understand "that our definitive wills are the same—idem velle, idem nolle." Unfortunately in the world of facts, which includes Soviet Russia and Poland and Germany and war and peace and foreign politics, black is not white nor grey, but plain black. The truth is that, as we pointed out last week, the "definitive wills" of France and Britain in Europe are today not the same, but contradictory. The French Government, supported by the French nation, wants one kind of thing with regard to Germany and Poland and Russia; the British Government, or at least the British people, wants exactly the opposite. The objects of our policies are no longer the same, but diametrically opposite. That is why it became clear during the last weeks not only to Germans and Russians, but to "the whole wide world," that the Anglo-French Entente no longer exists in the world of facts.

We have said that the British Government wants one thing and the French another, but this, unfortunately, is only half of the truth. The French want to keep Germany indefinitely bound down in the fetters of military and economic defeat, and for this purpose to build up a European system dominated by French military supremacy and composed of a circle of small armed States under the control of France. The British Government, even in its worst moments, has never wanted this. In general and in the abstract it has vaguely wanted to reconstruct Europe on peaceful lines and to give every nation in Europe a fair chance. But in foreign politics it is not sufficient to have general and abstract intentions; it is absolutely essential that one should have a definite, clear-cut policy. The reason why Europe two years after the end of the war is still not settling down is largely because, while the French Government and the Quai d'Orsay have had a well-defined policy and have steadily pursued it, Mr. Lloyd George and the British Government have never had a consistent policy of any kind.

Nowhere has this absence of a reasoned and consistent policy been more fatal than in Mr. George's handling of the Russian situation. So far as the Prime Minister possesses any intellectual life at all, he seems to have fitfully realised that there can be no peace or recovery in Europe unless Russia and the east of Europe are allowed to settle down. British interests and common humanity and sanity in this instance combined to point clearly to only one possible policy. The whole weight of British influence should have been thrown on the side of peace and settled government, and every opportunity taken to stabilise the existing political situations, to promote economic relations, and to discourage military adventures. Such a policy would have meant, and would today mean, direct opposition to the French policy in Russia and Eastern Europe. The French were occupied in arming and aggrandising Poland to serve as a armed thorn in the eastern side of Germany; they were lopping such parts away from eastern Germany as they thought would weaken her militarily and economically; their missions, military and economic, were trying to lay the foundations of an anti-German and anti-Russian alliance of small States under French hegemony. This policy bears on its face full evidence of its paternity in the Quai d'Orsay, that curious museum of foreign policy and conservatism from which brilliant French officials sedulously attempt to reinoculate the world with dead ideas. The French Foreign Office never learns and never changes. In 1891 it had provided France with an ally, Russia, whose duty it was in a European war to fall upon Germany from the east. In 1919 Germany had been crushed militarily and economically, but the Quai d'Orsay still had to provide some Power to play the part of France's ally in the next European war. Bolshevik Russia was assumed to be pro-German and therefore unavailable, and so the choice fell upon Poland. And since Bolshevik Russia was pro-German, Poland and every other instrument had to be used immediately not only against Germany in the west but against the Soviet Government in the east. War in the east against the Bolsheviks, through Kolchak, Denikin, the Archangel Government, Judenitch, Poland, Petliura, and now Wrangel, has thus become an integral part of French foreign policy.

Now it is true that Mr. George and the majority of the British Cabinet have realised that this French policy is not theirs or Great Britain's. But they have never had a policy to oppose to it. When one looks back over the two years which have passed since the armistice, it is amazing to see, considering the part which Britain played in the final stages of the war, how little has been her influence upon the subsequent settlement in Europe. The main lines of the settlement both on the Rhine and the Vistula are French; the war against Russia is a French conception. These are the concrete materialisations of a French policy. But there has been and there is no British policy, and therefore you cannot point to any important fact in the European situation today and say: That is the direct result of the British ideal."

Kings In Switzerland

(New York Times)

The right of asylum for political refugees has been highly valued in the past, and England and Switzerland have been proud of the fact that all political offenders from abroad were safe on their soil. But lately political offenders have been displaying the painful ingratitude of the serpent warmed in the bosom. Revolutionary propaganda fomented in Switzerland against other countries has now and then tried its hand against Switzerland itself; and despatches from Geneva report that the Swiss authorities are becoming a little disturbed over the activities of refugees of another kind.

Charles Hapsburg and Constantine of Greece are the most notable exiles now on Swiss soil. Both have lately been displaying unwonted affluence; Constantine is said to have been spending a good deal of money on professional propagandists and agitators, and Magyar royalists, with some Austrians, have been visiting Charles with increasing frequency. The Swiss are beginning to fear that the multitude of spies and secret agents from all nations which infested Swiss territory during the war will presently return.

America is not free from these influences; among Magyars here there are a good many who display royalist sympathies, and the restoration of the dynasty, as a prelude or a consequence of a nationalistic war against the late subjects of Hungary, would please many of those Magyars who during the war liked to represent Hungary as an oppressed nation. The recent visit of Mr. Charles Unszar was happily a brief one for the suspicion that that gentleman's interest were not wholly in raising money for the Red Cross was widespread among the neighbors of Hungary who were on our side in the war. Propagandists of Constantine, however, are still going up and down the country endeavoring to turn the Greek population of America against the man who has done more for Greece than any statesman since Themistocles. The Greak general elections come on Nov. 7: if the Greeks are tired of hearing Venizelos called "The Just," we shall know it then. But apparently the partisans of Constantine have less confidence in the elections than in intrigue.

"An Associated Press telegram from London reports the arrest of Miss Sylvia Pankhurst, one of the famous family of Suffragists, on a charge of publishing seditious literature."

From a paper edited by Comrade Sylvia Pankhurst I extract the following brilliant remarks by a miner:

"The fact must be pointed out that we, the grime of society, are sufficiently intelligent to realise that science has brought us to a stage where it is not necessary that we should toil and sweat for an existence as at present." .....

Let me still take another quaint, as well as candid extract, from the same article:

"Our slogan must be De—and not In—creased production.... I therefor repeat, that the active elements of each pit must get busy and organise ca' canny on scientific lines. Educate, agitate, and organise so as to be worthy of the expection and admiration of our Russian comrades."

THE MAN IN THE STREET

Let "The Man In The Street" (of the Daily Sketch) say a word about some of the stuff that finds its way into the paper edited by Sylvia. Of the piece that is given just above, he says: "If you want it flatter, more brazenly, or more unblushingly than that, I don't know where we should be likely to find it. You will notice that this fourteen-and-tuppenny benefactor of the consumer is not content with a forty-seven million ton shortage, 100,000 extra men in the pits, and more than double pay all round. He is anxious that ca' canny should be organised on deliberate and scientific lines, so that next year his country may be 94 million tons short; 188 million tons the year following, and so on and so forth to the perfect Marxian 'day.'"

He desires the pit men and their lords and masters to rise in their blood-and-bird-seed-majorities, "so as to be worthy" not of the everlasting gratitude of the dear, overburdened, over charged consumer, but of "the expectation and admiration of our Russian comrades."

WHO IS SYLVIA? WHO HER COMRADE?

I wonder if any of us have really considered, who in the name of all that is holy and and wonderful "our Russian Comrades" may be. "Russian Comrades" is a fine sounding, Hyde-Parky sort of phrase, even if it is a bit colorless. It doesn't tell you much of itself, but as you are to "educate, agitate and organise so as to be worthy of the expectations and admiration of your Russian Comrades," it is evident that in some few peoples' minds the "Russian Comrade" must be a sort of god, in whose sight it behoves you to comport yourself as nobly and creditably as a poor worm can.

One Russian friend of mine was talking about things a day or two ago, and he said "Russia will live when she has got rid of all them damn comrades." It was not so many weeks past that we were reading a vivid description of the kind of treatment that is meted out by Miss Sylvia's friends.

—From The Daily Telegraph.

The prisoners [the Czar and his family] were in a trap from which there was no escape. . . . There was no privacy, not even for the girls. These Russian guards [or comrades], recruited from the scum of the neighborhood, "would sit down at the table when the prisoners ate, and put their dirty hands into the plates, spit, jostle, and reach in front of the prisoners. Their greasy elbows would be thrust by accident or design in the Czar's face. Alexandra [the Czaritsa] was a special object of attention. They would crowd round her chair, lolling in such a manner that any movement on her part brought her into contact with their evil-smelling bodies.

"The guards [or Russian comrades] sang revolutionary songs to hurt and shock the feelings of the prisoners, containing foul words such as no man should dare to utter in the presence of innocent girls, but the revolutionary warriors ['comrades' all of them] delighted in wounding modesty of the grand duchesses in this and in other still more repulsive ways, by filthy scribbling and drawings on the walls, and by crowding round the lavatory—there was only one for the prisoners and the [comrades]."

AMERICA IN POLAND

Spirit Represented By Our Citizens In Every Department From Danzig To Front

BY RICHARD ORDYNSKI
(New York Times)

There is lots of competition in Poland today for any ex-stage manager who would try to stage America there, for the American hand is playing strong in every department of the game—from Danzig to where the shells are bursting at the front.

After spending six years in contact with Americans, it felt rather hard to take leave, when I said "Good-bye" several months ago and set off for Poland. But I did not leave America behind, for I found Americans spreading their customary cheer and energy in Paris, and en route across Europe to Warsaw. It was in Warsaw at war that they showed at their best. One could not forget America there.

He was a young officer just back from the front, and surrounded by a group of American newspaper men. He had a story, and was trying to put it over in Polish. They wanted the story and were trying to understand it in English. A Polish doughboy strolled along and stopped near the group, grinning.

"Say, do you speak Polish?" one of the newspaper men asked him, his tongue getting twisted.

"Sure," replied the soldier. "I learned it in Chicago."

And I spoke up too late to be of any use. The Chicago Polish soldier was translating for the officer, while the group were cheering the officer on with "good boy" talk.

What struck me particularly was how much these Americans seemed at home—and how much they made me, a Pole, seem at home. And the newspaper men did not always have a pleasant time of it, either, and, unfortunately, have been having many difficulties in getting the news they are after. Poles in Poland, differing from their American brothers, have no idea as to how to get a good story out of the press. Poland is full of good stories, but if a newspaper man wants to get them he has to work pretty hard, and if he is in a hurry, it seems as if all the elements conspire against him.

The Poles have a favorite cafe au lait, which they like with plenty of sugar and white bread. "How is it possible?" I asked, when I first arrived.

"Oh, we get it from you Americans," was the answer.

"You Americans!" I felt flattered. They called me American. And there was this beautiful white flour and practical can of sweet milk that made every one think of Herbert Hoover.

I was walking down an alley in the poorer part of a small town. Several children were playing in the gutter. I was surprised at their peculiar garments—one-piece garments that looked like sacks, with holes cut through them for the head and arms. As we drew closer I noticed three large letters on the front of each garment.

"What do those letters A. R. A. mean?" I asked my friend.

He laughed. "There is no waste in Poland now," he said. "That stands for American Relief Administration. We ate the flour and wear the sacks."

I think I am in the office of a busy concern on the twentieth floor of a New York skyscraper. In fact, I am on the second floor of the American Relief Administration offices in Warsaw. Typewriters clicking, busy dictation, errand boys running about, hundreds of petitions for food being decided upon; but on top of all that the irrepressible good cheer, though the military situation is then far from satisfactory.

I remember my last meeting with Mr. Hoover at a Dutch treat luncheon at Brown's Chop House in New York and his warm handshake. "Tell them there is nothing that could discourage us from being ahead with our work in Poland.

Two Americans enter the office, just back from different parts of the provinces, and begin relating their experiences. They seem to know the little towns of some parts of Poland better than many of us. One of them tells a story of a little Polish peasant boy who snugged by the hand an old Jewish woman when food was being distributed in one of the dirty little villages.

"There is your anti-Semitism in Poland," laughed the narrator. "Let outsiders come and see for themselves. Those that feel it deserve it."

Another busy office—another place with rushing, busy people, fighting even greater difficulties in the nature of the country, the traditions and prejudices of people, the lack of proper food and medicaments, and, unfortunately, the lack of proper sanitary arrangements or distribution facilities. The battle is so far no more than a draw, for this is the American Red Cross, fighting against wounds, disease, starvation and sickness, with the aid of the Polish Red and White Cross organisations.

Closely allied with the Red Cross is the military sanitary mission headed by Colonel Harry Gilchrist carrying on its inexorable war against typhus, an almost hopeless struggle for these 500 officers and men, but they continue to carry on, undaunted by the difficulties that confront them, often the lack of co-operation of uneducated people and the inroads of death into their own ranks.

These Americans are not content to "delouse" thousands, but they also maintain a typical American propaganda agency, disseminating information about typhus and how to fight it by means of pamphlets, moving-picture shows, lectures and other up-to-date Broadway advertising agencies. I had the pleasure to co-operate in the staging of one play, incidentally this Polish scenario was the product of Major Taylor, who wrote a corking good Polish story that scored a real success wherever exhibited in the theaters, Y. M. C. A. hotels and in the open air. We had the best Warsaw actors to act it, and they were experienced in scratching as well as any peasants I ever saw by the time the rehearsals were completed.

My friend is a Polish officer.

"Where do we go tonight?" I asked him.

"We're going to Aunt Imcia," he said. "That's the best place I know of. Wait and see."

And Aunt Imcia in Poland is the Y. M. C. A., the friend of soldiers and officers. The finest and largest sporting club in Warsaw is occupied by the Y. M. C. A., now called the House of the Polish Officer. Mr. Berry is in charge. We have a splendid dinner, and very cheap. The rooms are filled with officers on leave. Writing paper is issued free. There are plenty of good American cigarettes, a library, shower baths and entertainments. Every evening there is a moving-picture show or a sketch by a theatrical troupe. Eric Mayel is chief of the cinema department, which is going fine.

There is another large house also used for the Y. M. C. A., this the House of the Polish Soldier, where the doughboy from the front can get good food, cigarettes as usual and entertainment. The huts of the Y. M. C. A. are spread over Poland everywhere and reach to the front line of the army.

John R. Mott came to Warsaw when he was making a tour of inspection of Y. M. C. A. activities in Europe. He received a wonderful reception in Warsaw. Kindly Aunt Imcia has made good.

I must not leave out the Y. W. C. A., but, to tell the truth, I had little time hanging heavy on my hands and know very little about the work the American girls were doing, except what I heard from Polish sources, all of which attested that their work among the Polish women soldiers and in the canteens was an inspiring example of friendliness and self-sacrifice.

But closest to all hearts are the members of the Kosciuszko squadron. I have heard many Americans say they wonder if this country has repaid the debt of Kosciuszko and Pulaski. Were they to go to Poland they would not need my answer here. The debt has been repaid many times in death, wounds, sickness, discomfort and privation by these young Americans. And they have stuck it out to a man. When they came to Poland early in 1919 they did not find comfortable billets. They found war, disease and death. And on the pay of the Polish officer (which means it takes 200 marks to make one dollar) they smiled and played the game.

When the dark days came, we were all very depressed. It is the Polish temperament, and we felt pessimistic, as if we were abandoned by the whole world. But there was one man who cheered me up, and that was Alfred Boyden, American chief of the League of Red Cross Societies in Poland.

On Friday the thirteenth (a hard day), he asked me to dine with him, and he personally cooked up for me a regular old-fashioned American meal, beginning with grape nuts and corn flakes and ending with hot cakes.

"Here, smile," he said as he placed a dish before me.

It was late, and we heard the soldiers marching past under our window, silent soldiers, worn out from marching great distances.

We left the house and went out to watch the troops pass. The streets were filled with wagons, trains, the funny little carts drawn by one horse, thousands of them rumbling past. We spoke to half-awake soldiers staggering beside the carts, dumb with fatigue. Others, more exhausted, were lying in the carts. All were sullen.

"If only this time they will let us fight," they would say. "We are tired of running away. It is better to die than to be so weary. What do we care for strategy?"

A tattered, uncased flag passed by. With the deepest feeling, Boyden sighed, "Poor white eagle." Then he turned to me and said:

"You will soon be going home, and you must tell me. Tell them the truth as we all know and feel it. Tell them how we Americans feel who are working among the Poles and living with them. Tell them to trace the records of the men who condemn Poland, for there is a reason for that. See Mr. Henry P. Davison and tell him all. If Americans could come and see for themselves, it would be different. Poland is out of the way of travelers and they do not even know that they can get a perfectly good train to Warsaw forty-five miles from Paris.

It was a filthy village, half ruined. I saw a line of indescribably dirty children and tattered old women standing outside a steaming kitchen. Some of the children were pitiful looking beyond words. Ill-shaped heads, rickety limbs, anemic faces. They were mostly Jews of the east European type in this little village that had been the scene of battle.

I walked to the head of the line and I saw then that clothes were being prepared for distribution as well as food.

"What organisation is this?" I asked in Polish of the man who seemed to be directing operations.

"I don't understand," he replied to me in very good English.

And then we talked. He was from New York, and this was his first time in Poland although his grandparents had come from there. He was one of the workers of the Joint Distribution Committee, that efficient organisation that has done so much to relieve the distress of Jews through Eastern Europe. They, too, were staging America through their acts of mercy, saving the lives of the young and making easier the declining years of the old.

I spoke with many Polish Jews about the work of his committee, and they all praised it highly. But there was a great deal of criticism on their part of the attitude taken by many Jews in America.

"It is anti-Polish propaganda on the part of foreign Jews that causes us many of our difficulties," one of them said to me. "They do not give us a chance to work out our problems with those sane and high-minded Polish elements whom we must look to for aid. We must live together here, and live peacefully. Yet the foreign Jew often thinks he can do the most good by attacking our best friends. Instead of doing good, he brings us to harm."

Of course, I remembered the Fourth of July. But imagine my surprise when I awoke that day to find Warsaw ablaze with American flags and a tremendous demonstration taking place, greater even than I had ever seen in the streets of an American city before the war. It was pathetic and touching.

Thousands of children—Hoover's great family of the rescued—marched through the streets, singing and carrying American flags. What great faith they had! That belief, childish perhaps but harbored even in older hearts, that somehow America would not forget and would understand.

I motored out to a little village fifty miles from Warsaw that afternoon and found there the Mayor of the town addressing the small population in the school house on the Fourth of July. In the papers I read that in Cracow, Posen, and Lemberg similar demonstrations had taken place. The Fourth had become a national fete day in Poland. So was America being staged in the land of the white eagle.

Cost Of British Ships

Some striking figures as to the present cost of shipbuilding in Great Britain were given at the recent launching at Govan of the new Canadian Pacific liner Empress of Canada, by Sir Thomas Fisher, the general manager of the Canadian Pacific Ocean Services, Ltd., who stated that the cost of the vessel was £1,700,000, which prior to the war could have been built for half a million sterling, making the present cost more than three times that of prewar days.

Further figures were given showing that, with the estimated cost of building a vessel of the type just launched, interest on capital, insurance and allowance for depreciation, would necessitate an additional £20,000 being earned on a round voyage. The present cost of coal would be no less than £24,000 as against £4,500, wages have risen from £2,500 to £9,000, repairs which formerly cost about £1,700 would now cost £7,000, while the cost of provisions has increased from £3,000 to £8,000. Working expenses have increased by 350 percent, whereas fares have been increased by only 185 percent, which is not sufficient to cover expenses.

That the present high cost of building and maintaining ships is becoming a very serious factor in Great Britain will be readily understood, since, as the American Chamber of Commerce in London points out, adequate shipping communications are absolutely essential to the life of its people, and anything which is likely to hamper such development will be fraught with serious consequences to the whole empire. Indeed, Sir Thomas Fisher went so far as to declare that, unless a stop were put to the present high cost of travel, it would lead to the disintegration of the British Empire.

It is the most durable of all decorations, lasting for years with freshness unimpaired, whereas wall-papers deteriorate from the first day by fading and accumulating dust and dirt.

Hall's Distemper is a thorough disinfectant, and is applied directly upon the wall, forming a hard surface, from which dust and dirt may be "spring-cleaned" by lightly sponging with warm water.

How Obregon Cheated Death And Enemies

Twice, in the bad old days before Villa became a peaceful farmer and Obregon was peacably elected President of the Mexican Republic, the ex-bandit had a death squad ordered out to shoot the present President, Obregon didn't want to be shot, and he treated the whole idea with the "insolent nonchalance" which so often rescues heroes from tight places—especially in melodrama. "What would you shoot me for?" he is reported to have asked the ruthless Villa, without the flinch of a traditional eyelash. "If you shoot me you will only split the Carranza party and make a present of the country to the foreigners. If we hold together, we can hate each other, but we can keep Mexico for the Mexicans." Villa knew this was true, says Agnes C. Laut, in The Forum, where she presents the story along with several others that she picked up in a recent tour of Mexico. Therefore Villa "ordered the death squad back to barracks, roaring and swearing at the top of his voice, like an enraged bull, as he relinquished the chance of prey at hand." Apart from these two tense occasions with Villa, Obregon is said to have escaped death "by a hair, both by bullet and secret poisoning, so often that his followers consider he has a charmed life." If these various tight squeezes do not prove that Mexico's new one-armed President is a genuine "man of destiny," here are some other stories, direct from Mexico, illustrating his traits of character and general method of doing things:

Once when Villa had Obregon in his power in Chihuahua, he happened to have on his person in gold and negotiable bills forty thousand dollars. It is also a safe wager Villa did not know that money was on Obregon's person. Obregon sent for the American newspaper man who is now his financial agent. "If they get me," he said, "they will also get my subordinate officers. They are poor. Their families will be left destitute. Take that"—handing the American the forty thousand dollars—"and if I am bumped off, distribute it equaly among the families of the officers."

That is one side of Obregon's character. Here is another. On one occasion he had in his car several representatives of the foreign embassies from Mexico City. There had been a battle. A mortally wounded peon was howling at the top of his voice for his mother. "Does that blank fool think I am an incubator?" he asked, and through the car-window, by one well-aimed shot, the wounded crier was stilled forever by a shot from some Obregon officer.

Or take down in Mexico City Obregon's forces were encamped out San Angel way. There had been a battle. The houses of the neutrals all around were filled with the wounded and dying. One house had not room for another soul. A peon was dying outside the walls. A servant, who could not stay to keep the dogs off, ran to headquarters to report the man. One of Obregon's captains came back with an order to look at the man. He took one look. The man could not recover. "Kill him well," ordered the captain; and one blow put the peon out of misery. Obregon may or may not have issued the orders. His captain was a Yaqui; and it was the Yaqui code: yet he has been held responsible for the code.

One episode will explain why, though Carranza and Obregon held together, their military commanders could never operate in the same field together. It was down in Vera Cruz. A Carranza relative was in charge. There was at that time no embargo on the importation of firearms. Remington 30.30 shells were being used. The Carranza man had 2,500 men. Ten million rounds of ammunition came in. The Carranza general reported it all "shot off," and requisitioned one hundred million rounds. That, too, came in. It, too, was reported "shot off." If, as the Germans figured, one bullet out of twenty-five should hit a man, this general must have "winged" four million enemies, but that was not his game. He called in a little foreign broker—not an American—turned the ammunition all over to the little broker, and sold it back to the Government. This was done three times. The little Austrian broker bosted that he cleaned up $200,000 as his share of the deal.

This was the sort of thing that made Obregon froth at the mouth. It is the sort of thing that makes him bitter enemies to this day in the Carranza junta. Then there were other little things. Obregon wanted to be first to Mexico City. He was held back by red tape till Carranza beat him to it. That happened over and over in all Obregon's campaigns. It perhaps explains why Obregon would not go against Villa when Carranza's men couldn't whip Villa.

Obregon won the Yaqui Indians by the simple, but somewhat unusual, proceeding of practising with his own lands the division which he favored for Mexican lands in general. He descended from a Mexican family rich in lands, and he managed to divide up in such a way that he not only satisfied the Indians, but made a very good thing out of it for himself. He would set aside an acre or two acres to a family, advance the family a plow, a horse or a mule, and one sack of beans, all to be charged against returns. Now one sack of garbanzo beans would produce 280 sacks, worth fourteen to eighteen dollars a sack. All advances were charged against returns; then, for the use of the land, Obregon took 25 percent of the net profits. He did even better than this.

As all farmers know, the trick is not to raise a crop. It is to sell the crop without letting middlemen steal all the profits; so Obregon created an exclusive monopoly in Sonora for garbanzo beans. They must all sell beans to him; and controlling all beans, he raised the price to eighteen dollars a sack. Of course enemies howled at the word monopoly; but his worst enemies have never accused him of cheating the growers one cent. Compare his methods with Alvarado's socialistic experiment on the same line with henequen in Yucatan, when all profits went to overhead expenses and the growers were reduced to ruin. Yet Alvarado is today Obregon's finance minister, which in itself holds sends of future quarrels.

Obregon had always been a colonel in his own home guards: so when the revolution broke he called to his six hundred Yaquis and all the others who would come. It may be asked how the Yaquis got their firearms and how they get them today. Yaquis work on the American side of the border. They go constantly backward and forward across the border, and when they go back to Mexico they carry shells with them. And they are very sparing of shells. They use the knife. When they find an empty shell, they run lead into it, put in their own fulminating cap and use it again. It is a shell crueler than dumdum bullets.

So when Obregon reached Mexico City he had fifteen thousand men. It was then the Carranza junta began to fear him and began to conspire. Obregon countered to quickly and his enemies quaked. Dr. Atl, a madly enthusiastic I. W. W. man, educated in Paris in all the tenets of "Red" revolution, was called in. One can imagine how Obregon's land policy appealed to Atl. Atl got out among the unions. Conductors, drivers, taxi-men, deserted in droves to join Obregon's army. When Obregon left Mexico City he had thirty-five thousand men, and his enemies were powerless to touch him; and he has never forgotten Atl. When Atl went broke from the very excess of his own theories, it was Obregon who kept him in pocket-money, and as late as July, 1918, Obregon sent Atl one hundred dollars in Los Angeles.

But the association with Atl raised another host of enemies—the Carranza junta and the old safe conservatives. He was too powerful for open attack, but secret attempt after attempt war made on his life:

Once a conspiracy bribed an Indian boy to sell him some cones of poisoned ice-cream. Word through Indian friends came to Obregon. In sheer bravado, Obregon ordered the boy to help himself to a cone. The boy, of course, picked out an unpoisoned one. "Oh, I'll take that," said Obregon, beginning to munch the boy's safe cone, and he handed the boy another cone. The little Indian went from yellow to green with fear and began to weep. Obregon went on unconcernedly eating other cones. Luck was with him. He didn't chance to pick the poisoned cones, but the boy didn't dare to eat the cone given to him. A confession followed. The conspirators were summoned. They were given the cones. One merchant died on the spot. I forget whether three or five of the conspirators were shot; but all the press announced was ptomaine poisoning.

At another time some Zapatistas were smuggled into the city and placed on the roof of the Jockey Club with rifles. Obregon used to ride past the club to the National Palace. A fusillade of shots hit him. He fell beneath his horse unconscious. The Zapatistas were clapped into jail. It was announced Obregon was dead. That night two Spaniards went to the jail and offered the guard thirty thousand dollars in gold to let the Zapatistas escape. From his death-bed Obregon ordered the three Zapatistas let out and the two Spaniards arrested. Confession followed. Three men were shot for this conspiracy and twenty-nine others shipped out to Spain; so Zapata's followers today are Obregon's friends.

Obregon has been blamed for the hideous massacre of the police. His friends declare this was not his work, but the work of the junta conspiring against him to discredit the Yaquis. What happened was this: Huerta had formed a terribly strong body of city police. What with Obregon's thirty-five thousand and the five thousand Huerta police, the Carranzistas were in deadly fear of a cuartel lazo, or quick military flop. They tried to disarm the police, but it was known the police still had firearms concealed. Strikes were impending. The Yaquis were told to "run the streets at night" so strikers could not come out. Atl was now hiding in Obregon's house. Carranza had forbidden the strike and was chilling to the I. W. W.'s because they had gone over to Obregon. Two Yaqui colonels got very drunk. In a saloon they purposely created a row. The police arrested them. The Yaquis, "running the streets at night," then assaulted the police of the Fifth Precinct. The row became a massacre—a hideous massacre. The police were shot like scuttling rats in a trap—three hundred of them—and one hundred and sixty-eight citizens were wounded. It was all of a piece with the usual pattern of Mexican politics.

On another occasion, when Obregon was visiting in San Francisco under United States military escort a variety actress was placed next his room in the hotel with a bribe of ten thousand dollars to give him poisoned wine; but Obregon's wine and women days were over. He had married an old sweetheart and settled down. He probably never knew of the plot hatched against him in his own land; but the United States State Department did, and if Obregon had died, that variety actress would have been hanged. the Obregon was no friend of America at that time. If Carranza had permitted Obregon to conduct an honest campaign for the Presidency, Obregon would never have used the standard of revolution for a second time; but the foolish old Chief knew Obregon would win in any honest contest, and ordered Obregon to his regiment, resigned by request. Carranza was prepared to arrest him. Obregon fled to his

. Will his luck stay him? Qu'en sabe. As a friend said, when I asked that question, "Only God knows what will come out of the muddle of Mexico; and he isn't telling."

Italians Seize Ship At Moscow's Order

Seamen, Hold Russian Vessel At Genoa—Women Enlisted To Fight Wrangel

Genoa, Italy, September 11.—The Russian steamer Rodosto has been captured by force by thirty seamen who boarded the vessel. After assailing the officer, they bound and imprisoned him and took steps to place the vessel at the disposal of the metal workers.

The Federation of Seamen has published the following statement with regard to the incident:

"The steamer Rodosto, 5,000 tons, flying the colors of the old Russian Empire, arrived over a week ago with nine officers who belonged to the Czar's army and who are now under orders of the command of the military base at Constantinople and working against the Bolshevist army in favor of the head bandit Wrangel.

"The ship originally belonged to Germany. During the war it passed to Russia as a prize of war. It was used against revolutionary Russia by various admirals of the Entente. This ship, together with many others, was stolen from the Russian nation by the so-called Commission for Russian Commerce, sitting in Paris, the Chairman of which is Admiral Komke, one of the many who in behalf of international capitalism is fighting the movement for liberation of the Russian people.

"A representative of the Government of the Russian Soviets came to Genoa with written instructions authorising us to take possession of the Rodosto on behalf of the Soviet Government. Therefore, with the co-operation of seamen and the staffs of several ships in port the position of the Rodosto has been made regular."

WOMEN ENLIST

London, September 11.—Russian women are volunteering to fight against General Wrangel, the anti-Bolshevist leader in South Russia, says a Moscow wireless despatch just received here.

The message reports that a third party of trade unionists who volunteered has been despatched to the southern front, and that among the party is a large number of women.

The Russian Soviet forces on the Crimean front have occupied villages in the region of Oriekhoy, the statement says.
